

Canon Business Properties

Famed Real Estate Broker Alex Radosevic Will Appear as Panelist at Prestigious Commercial Real Estate Conference in Beverly Hills

Real estate visionary set to speak about the effect of Artificial Intelligence on the commercial real estate industry at high-level event slated for the Waldorf Astoria on Jan. 8, 2019

LOS ANGELES, January 7, 2019 (Newswire.com) - Noted real estate broker and commercial property expert Alex Radosevic of Canon Properties is set to appear at the 6th annual commercial real estate forecasting luncheon and conference to be held at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel on Wilshire Boulevard in Beverly Hills, California, on Jan. 8. Hosted by industry leader Samuel K. Freshman and the Standard Management Company, the annual conference is among the nation's most important industry gatherings. The event traditionally attracts the industry's leading luminaries and this year's event is no exception.

"I am thrilled to be attending this year's commercial real estate conference on Jan. 8 at the Waldorf Astoria," Radosevic said. "I look forward to sharing my expertise with those in attendance and am particularly honored to be a panelist at this year's event."

The theme of this year's conference is "The Changing Face of Real Estate: What Disrupting Forces Should You Expect?" This is a perfect topic for Radosevic, who has garnered a reputation as an industry leader when it comes to providing forward-looking advice and counsel to clients looking for a high return on investment. Known as a thought leader when it comes to innovation, Radosevic attracts clients nationally and globally due to his expertise and track record of success.

"I will be one of the leaders on a panel about Artificial Intelligence and its effect on commercial real estate. This is especially timely because technological advances are here to stay - and are for the better. I can't wait to share my thoughts on how we can all benefit from the advent of AI and its impact on this exciting industry."

Radosevic is the founder and president of Canon Properties, located a stone's throw from the event's location at the Waldorf Astoria. Canon is a full-service brokerage serving clients that seek the company's knowledge and expertise when it comes to high-end property investment and management. The company has never lost a client to a competitor in its two-decade history, owing to its expertise and ability to find the best listed and off-market properties for its roster of clients who seek the highest rate of return on investment. At the 2019 CRE event, Radosevic will have the chance to share his insights and expertise with others, including prospective new clients and other industry insiders.

"I am excited about seeing old friends, talking with other industry leaders and meeting new people interested in hearing about all of the exciting things happening in our industry," Radosevic concluded.

Correction: A previous version of this press release stated that the company involved in hosting the conference is the Stanford Management Company. This new version of the press release correctly states that the involved company is the Standard Management Company.

Source: CANON Properties

Additional Links

- CANON Properties

Additional Images

Original Source: www.newswire.com